

Western Section

The older western section of the cemetery has the plots arranged in a grid with the memorials mostly facing eastwards. The numbering probably started in a rational way as some groups of surviving memorials have plot numbers in a sequence. However there are various jumps in the numbering scheme and some later plot numbers that are preceded by 'A' or 'B'.

In order to facilitate locating a particular plot based on its number, the following table identifies the row (in red along the top of the map) which contains the plot. About 36% of those buried have their names on a memorial. In the western area there are areas where the memorials are sparse and it is not possible to establish plot numbers with any certainty. In addition there are surviving memorials where the inscriptions have not been found.

Eastern Section

The newer, eastern section has a series of areas each with their own numbering scheme.

Main section	The plots are identified by (group, row, plot) where a group comprises 7 rows identified by a letter, the rows are identified by a letter (A-G) and the plot numbers start at 3 on the western side. The southernmost row has plot FE11. The northernmost row has plots NG03 to NG19.
Cremation plaques	On the eastern side is an array of cremation plaques in two groups. It would seem that the original numbering scheme consisted to 'C' followed by a number. Then additional rows were added to the left - identified by 'LCr' and a number - and to the right - identified by 'RC' and a number. The plaques are in two groupings separated by a gap of 9 feet (2.74m).
Tree area	On the southern side is an area which leads up to some trees. This currently has two parts: one is made up of two rows and the other a grouping of six rows. The memorials are mainly small headstones on a base. The two rows on the western side are numbered (TFA, plot number). This numbering scheme changes after TFA18 with subsequent plots having a letter appended. The plots within the group of 6 rows are numbered (TF, row-letter, plot). The row-letters are A-F with 'A' closest to the path. Plot numbers are unique.
